To come up with the words, a challenge because how could such a beautiful soul have to leave earth so soon. The memories shared, the love given and received. The joys of loving Kody are things everyone he met will carry with them forever. Love never dies even when people do and to hold that notion in your heart helps ease pain. I'm grateful for every moment spent with him. A firm believer no time is enough time with the people you really love. I wish grace for all in the grieving processing. May he rest in peace and may we do our best to keep him alive in our hearts and day to day journey. May we all see his messages to us clearly. May we feel. May we gather.
