I miss you so much Jared! We would have been married 2 days now. I still cant understand any of this i just know you lit up my world and now it feels dark without you. You made me proud everyday and made it a point to compliment me almost daily. You are forever with me but nothing feels right since you left. I love you so much i got your dentist appointment reminder. So many plans and all the hard work just gone. You taught me many things and i have hope that one day ill feel like its ok to smile again but right now i cant handle it. I wish you were here to hug. I love you always have always will xoxo

He will be missed forever. Im so sorry to his family so very sorry! Its a shock and there are no words to express the sadness. Dear Evans family, My family and I are so sorry for your loss. While words fail to truly express the pain, know that our prayers and thoughts are there to encourage you. All humans feel the sting of death but the Bible gives comfort that God promises at 1 Corinthians 15:26 "And the last enemy, death, is to be brought to nothing". This is something that has brought me and my family solace when we've lost loved ones and we hope it encourages. Take peace and comfort. For comfort from the Bible, please visit bit.ly/Deathjworg

I remember being down at your house in high school. Me and Chris would walk down from my house. He would be like let's go to Dro's. We would get there and just sit in the living room and crack jokes. It honestly was such a good time. Funny as ever. Your mom was always so hospitable to us too. You made people laugh and you were always smiling. I'm going to miss you Jared. With Love, Deanna
