Paul and I met John and Marcia when we moved to Pittsburgh in 2003. We couldn't ask for better neighbors. John was a party man and the life of the party. He loved to host parties. We remember fondly a Halloween party given by John and Marcia. My 93 year old father was living with us at the time and, of course, John said bring him along. My dad, Joe, had a great time and ended up with a nun sitting on his lap. That's the kind of fun you had when John gave a party. He became \"best buddies\" with Paul during the nine years we lived in Pittsburgh. Whenever I couldn't locate Paul, I knew he was sipping Slivovitz with his buddy, John. The world was a better place with John in it. His slogan was \"Another Day in Paradise.\" Well, John, you're in the real paradise now. We love you and Rest in Peace. Marie and Paul Kozlow
