Uncle Curt always stood out as the strong and understanding husband and father, logically guiding the way. He was resourceful in figuring out and fixing things, He loved his backyard garden, and would like proudly take me for a walk outside to see the vegetables he was growing.His daughter was raised sensibly and with compassion. When she felt her parents needed a new location, Janet and her husband, Lee, moved them to their home. That way, they had a closer relationship and superior care.Blessings and prayers for all those who were close to Curt. He is missed greatly.
