I am writing on behalf of the entire Beach family (Charlotte, Buddy, Carrie (Donato), & Alison) who all felt that Kim was family. My mom, Charlotte, said, "There are just so many things to say I wouldn't know where to start. I always say one of the best things that ever happened to me was when I called Exsalonce for the first time for a hair appointment and they booked me with Kim. From that first appointment 20-25 years ago, she just became part of our family. She came to our home and did my hair when I had my knee surgery." Which meant and still means so very much to us. "She did all of our hair one time or another: children (Alana (Ann below), Carrie, & Alison), grandchildren (Malissa & Emily), & niece (Ashley Hudgins)." I (Alison) live in Chicago & will not be able to attend the viewing or service, but members of my family will be present to honor our sweet Kim & our beautiful memories of her. Like Lugene wrote below, "I'll never forget Kim saying, "Let's make you gorgeouser!" Which I thought was just for me...well, she sure made it seem that way...that I was beautiful in her eyes. She was beautiful in ours! She always had a smile on her face & hug to greet me with. I'm still searching for a hairstylist who compares with her, but I know I won't find one. My first memory of Kim was when I was 13 (now 39)...actually, that may have been my first haircut! She cut it shoulder-length and styled it for a middle school dance. She also dyed my hair red when I was in high school. After I went away for college and then moved out of state, I would still schedule appointments with her when I was home or at least go to see her when my mom had an appointment. I'll always wish that I had gotten to hang out with Kim outside of the salon for a girls' night out. Although I haven't met Jacob or Sydney, I feel like I have, as I got to hear about you both as you grew up and I am just so very sorry for your loss. We've been praying for you, your dad, & family that you will find peace & feel comforted knowing that she loved you and is smiling & laughing again without any pain. She was our friend & is now an angel who will watch over & protect her family until they are together, again. Sending our love & prayers that you will feel her love & warmth during the holiday season & always.

A beautiful star which only had precious moments to bless a glorious light upon our lives, but shall continue to shine down upon us from the Heavens. A beautiful star which shall forever continue to shine as the brightest star in the nighttime sky, reminding us all that you are there. As the wind may grace the cheek of a loved one's face, You are there. As the melody of the rain embraces the sky, You are there. Your love will always be a part of life as the day is a part of the night, as the months are a part of the seasons. As we close our eyes and take a breath, as we all question why, You, our precious Kim, were truly from Heaven and now, your precious and gracious soul is back there again. Let's make you gorgeouser, she'd always say, as if to say you were already gorgeous to start. And so it was for over 34 years as she'd cut and eventually color my hair. Every six weeks we'd talk about our families, weddings, funerals, travels, illnesses, grandmotherhood, daughters, recipes, politics, children's books, and coffee. When I shared my new favorite Starbucks blend with her, we howled as we ended giving each other a pound every single Christmas. But it is her outlook and zest for life that I cannot shake. I guess I'm not supposed to. She's off with the angels, obviously, making them gorgeouser. Peace and love my sweet Kim.
